

CONCENTRATION CATHOLIC RELIGION

Important information regarding Catholic Religious Education as a concentration for the Business & Economics Pedagogy bachelor's degree

WHY STUDY CATHOLIC THEOLOGY?

From antiquity to the religious challenges of the present, at the Department of Catholic Theological Studies you explore the history of Christian belief and engage with the conduct and mentality of religious individuals.

In doing so, theology doesn't remain passive or theoretical; instead, it provokes critical evaluation: What purpose do religion and belief hold today for individuals and society? With this orientation, your studies provide a number of vocational options including ecclesiastical, academic, political, economic, and journalist pathways among others.

SINGLE FOCUS, MANY BENEFITS

- PERSONAL PERSPECTIVE
In theology, you grapple with your deepest personal questions and convictions.
- IDEAL LEARNING ENVIRONMENT
The small-group structure cultivates your strengths within a trusted environment.
- DIVERSE TOPICS AND CAREER OPTIONS
Deepen your knowledge in any of the many subject areas and practical fields.

"For me, Theology encompasses History, Philosophy, Literary Studies, Social Science, and Cultural Studies. I learn here how to consider things from different perspectives. The diversity of topics fosters conversations between subjects. That makes my studies enthralling!"

Franziska Rauh is a Master of Theology student.

A GOOD COMBO: THEOLOGY AND BUSINESS & ECONOMICS PEDAGOGY

The Catholic Religious Education Concentration can be a part of your undergraduate or graduate studies. This combination allows you to apply for a teaching trainee position at vocational schools. The social and intercultural competence that you acquire in a theological course of study also qualifies you for positions in the business world, ministry, and other realms.

"My studies have helped me recognize society's religious diversity. Multicultural aspects also play an important role in the economy. Another benefit of my interdisciplinary studies is that I have a better prospect of getting a position as a vocational school teacher." #theomainz

Lukas Kleinschmitt studies Business & Economics Pedagogy with Catholic Theology as his concentration.
