TALC_me wants to provide new access to our world through the study of medieval cultures and languages. Thirteen partners from nine European countries are together developing curricula which, by allowing students to understand culture through time and space, will potentialise medievalists' skills: this will provide our students with valuable tools for their professional development and for their ability to communicate between cultures – but also for our society in general. Our students are part of this development and should be given the opportunity to help shape it.
